

DRINKS MENU

Highlands

The Highlands is geographically the largest whisky region in Scotland. North Highland whiskies are influenced by the coast, soil and tend to be light bodied with a rich and sweet spice. Central, Southern and Eastern Highlands can be often quite diverse. They are generally light bodied, fruity with a dryer finish but not as sweet as the malts found on Speyside

Speyside

Speyside malts are typically the sweetest of all single malt whiskies. The huge selection can generally be broken down into two categories. The heavy, rich sherry and the more complex light floral flavoured. Speyside malts are essentially sweet whiskies, although some can have a peaty character with just a slight hint of smoke.

Islay

The island of Islay is usually associated with peaty single malt whiskies. These whiskies are considered to be the strongest flavoured of all single malts, known to be dry, smoky and bursting with flavour. The character of Islay malt whiskies are very often described as being very medicinal, costal and with a dry finish – sometimes with quite a bite.

Islands

Island malts are produced on the islands around the Scottish Mainland. Though most Island whiskies are salted by the sea, some are sweet and herbal. Due to the location of the Islands distilleries their whiskies tend to have a costal feel to them. They are slightly more peaty in character than most Highland Malts, but not to the extent of Islay malts. The peatiness is generally softer and sweeter than their stronger cousins of Islay.

Lowland

These tend to be light in body with soft grassy notes, some sweet fruit and a lovely maltiness. They make nice aperitif whiskies which can be an easy introduction to the novice malt drinker, or for those wanting a complex, soft but ethereal malt.
